

Hi

My name is Luca Silvestro, I am 24 years old and I am an Italian guy.

I am looking for a job in USA.

I studied in a hotel school, so I have the basics of both cooking, dining and reception.

My work experience in the industry started at the age of 16 when I started doing internships through school. While advancing through school I did 3 internships of about 3 months each at different restaurants.

The first one I did in a hotel in the kitchen, and there I did all the basic preparations for service. The second internship I did in a typical Tuscan trattoria in the kitchen, I was always doing basic preparations and helping the service. The last one I did was in a restaurant, where I was always doing basic preparations and helping with the service.

the first experience I have worked like waiter in a pizzeria, I went only the weekend when they had more job.

the second experience I worked in a pizzeria restaurant always on weekends as a waiter, but if necessary I also gave a hand in the kitchen and washing while serving.

These experiences I have not been able to insert in the cv because I worked in black and I did not have a contract to declare it.

I did these extras while I was working in a factory because that would have guaranteed me a higher salary instead of working every day as a waiter.

But not being happy with this I decided that I wanted to completely turn my life upside down and move to another country and get back into this industry completely.

I would be looking for a job as a waiter, but I could easily consider job offers.

I am a native Italian speaker and I have the basics of Spanish, I don't speak English but I am studying it. I know that this in the first months can create problems for me, but it is what fully motivates me to learn the language.

I decided to find a job in the United States because of the quality of life and the job opportunities it offers, but also because being in a place where only English is spoken can allow me to learn it more easily.

I am also willing to consider paying or contributing to the sponsor.

Thank you for your attention and have a nice day.

Best regards,

Luca